Even in the times of crisis consumers have their rights. Those rights are legally binding and even a long-lasting crisis cannot be used as an excuse for the lack of enforcement.

On 14 March 2014, the European Economic and Social Committee together with the Consumers Protection Centre KEPKA organise in Thessaloniki the 16th edition of the European Consumer Day. This year's event will be dedicated to "Consumer protection and social inclusion in times of crisis".

High-level speakers will address this event, delivering speeches and participating in different debates.

Given the limited number of seats available in the meeting room, the participants will be selected on a "first come, first served basis".

For budgetary reasons, the Committee will not be able to pay transport costs and other expenses but participation in the event is free.
